

The Age of LOVE

EARLY PRESS & REVIEWS

“Steven Loring does a fantastic job in taking you deep into a world that – for many of us – may never have even crossed our minds... No matter what your age, THE AGE OF LOVE is one film you will want to experience, as it shares a real story full of emotion and that will assure you, with each passing year, the longing for love and the touch of someone near never goes away.”

“Paints a rich portrait of what it’s like to age and still harbor a sense of unfinished business. Thanks to its characters and its sharp-eyed director, THE AGE OF LOVE is tender, honest and inspiring. Plus, who doesn’t crack a smile when older people find equal joy in a dirty innuendo and a genuine moment of happiness?”

“Enter the world of speed-dating for the 70+ set. From widowers to divorcees, men who haven't dated for 50 years to women who call 71-year-olds "babies," Steven Loring's film is a touching and funny look into the lives of seniors who just want to find love.”

Katherine Brooks, THE HUFFINGTON POST

“First-time documentary filmmaker Steven Loring has roared out of the gate with THE AGE OF LOVE. Honest, occasionally hilarious...emotionally moving. Like its subjects, it deserves to have audiences fall in love with it.”

Erich Van Dussen, GATEHOUSE MEDIA SYNDICATE

“The film is an immensely honest look at ordinary people who find themselves unexpectedly looking for love later in life. It tells a story of ageless yearnings amid oxygen tanks and creaky joints. And, like any good reality show, it involves raw emotional drama and comedic touches.”

Linda Abbit, SENIOR PLANET

“The film works so well because of the sense that Loring is determined to treat his subjects with the dignity they deserve. Contrary to what society constantly seems to tell us, growing older doesn’t mean that we cease to have the same desires as anyone else, and it’s heartening to see THE AGE OF LOVE take those desires seriously.”

Adam Lubitow, THE ROCHESTER CITY NEWSPAPER

“THE AGE OF LOVE shows us that love is ageless. It’s a great film for older audiences as well as for college students studying relationships and for professionals working with older populations. Too often films ignore the full humanity of older men and women and forget that they can be husbands, wives and lovers. The Age of Love is a wonderful corrective to all those films that deny seniors the full range of who they are and who they can be.”
